

After School Culinary Programme: Yummy Lunch!

As part of meaningfully engaging identified students after school, the 'Yummy Lunch' programme was initiated as part of a key Home-School Partnership.

In this collaboration, parents contribute by sharing their very own recipes. In one session, we have Ahmad's mother who shared her delicious cookie recipes.

Under the guidance of Culinary Senior Trainer, Mr Han Xuanchou, the students like Ahmad and his peers had the opportunity to apply their vocational skills to try out the parents' recipes.

Through teamwork and determination, they managed to bake the yummy cookies!

After School Culinary Programme: Together, We Can Make A Difference

The after-school culinary programme at APSN Katong School was initiated by Vocational Education Department, in collaboration with Allied Professionals to support and engage a group of identified students in meaningful activities.

The programme provided the opportunity for these students to not only learn key culinary skills such as knife skills, but the opportunity to put their learning to use.

They were empowered to decide on the dish they would like to learn to make, budgeting and purchasing the necessary ingredients. The approach helped these students to fully appreciate and understand the importance of concepts and skills taught in school as they prepare to transit to post-secondary education.

While the students did exceptionally well in preparing their favourite dishes, the key success was in their improved school attendance and engagement during the programme. The students also brought their food and skills home to bond and eat with their families.
